

CREDIT GUIDE

Our responsible lending obligations

We must not enter into a credit contract, or increase a credit limit, if the contract is unsuitable for the consumer.

A proposed credit contract or increase in a credit limit will be unsuitable if, at the time it is entered into, it is likely that:

- the consumer will be unable to comply with their financial obligations under the contract, or could only comply with substantial hardship; or
- the contract will not meet the consumer's requirements or objectives.

The law presumes substantial hardship (unless the contrary is proved) where, looking at the issue at the time the assessment is made, the consumer has to sell their principal place of residence if that is the only way that they could comply with their financial obligations under the credit contract.

If requested by the consumer, we must give them a copy of our assessment that the credit contract or increase in a credit limit that they are applying for, or have applied for, will not be unsuitable.

We must give the consumer the copy of our assessment:

- if requested before entering into the credit contract or increasing the credit limit - before entering into the credit contract or increasing the credit limit;
- if requested within 2 years after entering into the credit contract or increasing the credit limit – within 7 business days of our receiving the request;
- if requested within 2 years, but no than more than 7 years, after entering into the credit contract or increasing the credit limit – within 21 business days of our receiving the request.

We must provide the copy of the assessment free of charge.
